$40,000 FIRE SWEEPS PALOS FARM

13 FARM BUILDINGS DESTROYED ON BRAASCH BROS. FARM: HIGH WIND CARRIES SPARKS 3-4 MILE

A $40,000 fire swept the farm of Gottfried and Fred Braasch located 3 miles northwest of Orland in Palos township Monday afternoon.

Shortly after 12 o'clock Mrs. Henry Braasch residing on an adjoining farm saw smoke coming out of a barn and she telephoned to Mrs. Gottfried Braasch and called her attention to the fire. The latter had just finished the family washing. The men had all left the farm earlier in the day to bale hay on a neighboring farm.

Help was summoned by telephone but a strong southwest wind fanned the flames into a roaring furnace which swept everything in its path. All of the buildings on the farm, with the exception of one fell prey to the flames. In all, about 13 buildings were burned.

A call was sent to Frankfort for the chemical truck but the Frankfort fire department failed to get the call. The Mount Greenwood chemical was then called and made the run in 40 minutes, but was unable to do anything as there was no water handy and the chemical alone could not combat the flames.

A large crowd of farmers and people from Orland were present and helped save all the household goods. All of the farm machinery, including a $1,000 tractor, was saved, but a few chickens were killed. A large pile of coal, 11 pigs and other things.

The high wind made it impossible to fight the fire and burning brands fell in showers on the farm of Henry Braasch, about a half a mile away, setting fire to a straw stack. The fire fighters had all they could do to save the buildings on this farm, as the straw stack caught fire and burned. Burning embers were also carried to the Edward Powell farm and set fire to some brush which had been piled along the roadside.

The loss is estimated at about $40,000, with about $5,000 covered by insurance. The fire started in a barn in which green millet hay was stored and it is said that combustion was the cause of the fire.

The large farm house which stood near the barns became so hot that it burst into flames and was beyond saving. Luckily, no horses or cattle were in the barns at the time of the fire. A pet cat which had been in one of the barns came running out with its fur on fire and died from its burns.

It is understood that a neighbor has offered the use of his barns and home free to the Braasch families until they can build up again.

$5,000 FIRE ON WITT BROS. FARM IN PALOS TOWNSHIP

A fire of unknown origin broke out in the mow of a barn on the Witt Bros. farm 6 miles N. E. of Orland in Palos township Wednesday evening about 7:30 o'clock. Miss Clara Witt saw the fire first. The Blue Island fire department was called out but the large barn was beyond saving before the fire department could get there. The barn was 40x80 feet and contained 60 tons of hay.

No live stock perished. The loss is estimated at $5,000 covered by insurance. A Blue Island fireman had his hand injured by a falling wall.

Will County's New States Attorney H. Rehn

Hjalmar Rehn (Republican candidate for states attorney) was swept into office as Will County's new states attorney in the Republican landslide Tuesday. Mr. Rehn was a former candidate and polled a heavy vote throughout the county. He received 21,303 votes defeating his opponent Francis J. Loughran by a majority of 13,541 votes. Loughran who ran on the Democratic ticket received 7,762 votes.

Rehn's victory came decisively in an election in which a high water mark for balloting was reached, more than 31,000 votes being cast in Will County.

Rock Island Puts On Paint Up Cam.

The Rock Island is conducting a paint up campaign along its lines and the painters have just finished painting the depot, section house, milk platform, flag shantys and bunk houses at Tinley Park and have finished a similar job at Mokena this week. They are using a very pretty and pleasing four color scheme.

The body color is a rich cream with white trimmings, while a dark green band is used for the base. The Rock Island shield and name "Rock Island" is painted in black on the depot. It is understood that this standard color scheme is being used along the entire system. The interiors of the depots are also being painted a cream color.

ALDERMAN SALOONIST OF MOKENA TOLD HE MUST REMOVE SALOON SHADES

At the meeting of the village council (Wednesday night), Alderman George Wannemacher was questioned by the board as to why he did not remove the shades from his saloon windows in compliance with the request made by the board at the last meeting. Ald. Wannemacher said that nothing wrong was going on at his saloon and courted investigation.

Ald. Emil Krapp replied that no one accused the former of any wrong doing, but that as long as Frank Hirsch had removed the shades from his saloon windows, there was no reason why he should not do the same, and if he failed to do so, the board would either be compelled to pass an ordinance compelling him to remove his shades, or the board could revoke his license and close his place all together. Ald. Wannemacher made no comment as to what course he would pursue.

2 Suspects Nabbed in Bank Case

Mokena Council Shakes Up Local Police Dept.

The office of Sheriff John D. Walker of Will County is making an exhaustive probe of the Mokena State Bank robbery case and so far have arrested two suspects who have been put under $3,000 bonds each and are locked up in the County jail at Joliet.

Last Wednesday, the day after the bank robbery, a young fellow who has been boarding in Mokena the past several weeks, going under the name of Vernon Touzen, was arrested by Deputy Walter Fisher as a suspect and turned over to the sheriff's office. After being questioned by the officials and Edward Powers, the sheriff's special investigator, it is said the young man broke down and confessed that his name was not Touzen, but that it was James. He had been posing as a U. S. Prohibition official in connection with the Frankfort brewery case, but he also confessed that this was only a sham. He never, at any time, held a government position.

The day of the robbery he made a number of statements it is said, which caused suspicion to be directed against him and which led to his arrest.

en, was arrested in the office of the United States marshal in the Federal building in Chicago on Thursday afternoon. Deputy Fisher, of Mokena, made a thorough investigation of the movements of this man and laid his deductions before the Federal authorities.

According to the story, Touzen, who has been boarding in Mokena for several weeks, posed as a brother of James. He passed himself off as a Prohibition agent in connection with the Frankfort brewery case. According to the information obtained from the Federal authorities by Deputy Fisher, Touzen had been in the employ of the Prohibition department for a few weeks as custodian of the Frankfort brewery but has not held this position for several weeks.

He had purchased a Willys-Knight car at New Lenox and made a down payment on the car. Not having any license plates for this car, he finally drove into Chicago with the license plates belonging to Edward Schenkel of Mokena, on his car. Mr. Schenkel had owned a Ford but sold the car and had kept the license plates in a shed. How Touzen got these plates on his car, Mr. Schenkel does not know.

The government officials claimed they had a charge of some kind against Touzen and held his car. When Deputy Fisher told the Federal officials of his investigations, they said they would hold the man if he came to the Federal building in Chicago. Accordingly, Deputy Fisher left a warrant at the U. S. Marshall's office and when Touzen called there Thursday afternoon, he walked into a trap and was held. Deputy Fisher was called and took Touzen to Joliet the same evening and turned him over to Sheriff J. Walker. Touzen was also closely questioned, but according to the sheriff's office, they have no direct proof that they were implicated in the Mokena bank robbery case, but their actions have been so suspicious that it has been deemed best to hold them awaiting future developments of the case.

After his Willys-Knight car was taken over by the federal officers, Touzen drove to Mokena Wednesday evening in a Ford coupe and appeared at the Mokena post office inquiring if any license plates had Ford coupe without any license arrived for him and when told they had not, he left town driving his plates.

The highway police in Cook county were notified to intercept him. At Tinley Park the Cook County officers saw Touzen but before they could get up to his car he started to cross the Rock Island tracks when a freight train pulled in back of him and by the time the train had cleared the crossing, Touzen had disappeared.

The suit cases of the two suspects were taken from their boarding place in Mokena and turned over to the sheriff's office and upon examination these suit cases were found to contain bullets which fit the automatic revolver found in the abandoned robbers car last Tuesday. Mushy love notes and pictures of a number of Mokena were also found in these suit cases it is said. Evidently these girls had lost their heads if not their hearts when these two dashing young men with an auto and a government (?) job came in their midst.

On Monday detectives from the Burns Detective Agency of Chicago and operatives from the office of the Will County Sheriff called in Mokena and questioned a number of Mokena people relative to the movements of the suspects now being held in the county jail.

The village council took a hand at investigating certain angles of the bank robbery case.

Wednesday night, Ald. August Hentsch, chairman of the police committee, told officer John Frisch that complaints had been made by citizens of the village that if the board did not discharge him, they would get up a petition demanding his removal. Officer Frisch told the board that he was in no way implicated in the robbery and that he would welcome a petition and that he was ready for an investigation.

Deputy sheriff Walter Fisher gave a complete account of the movements of George Touzen and James, who have been held in the Will County jail as suspects in the bank robbery case. He showed that Touzen had posed as a deputy marshal and had been wearing a phony badge. He had only served as custodian at the Frankfort brewery for two weeks and that he had never held the office of federal deputy or marshal. He further showed that Touzen and James had planned to keep on the good side of Officer Frisch and had visited with him daily and had pulled the wool over his eyes as to their intentions. Touzen swapped a 32 revolver with officer Frisch for his gun. After trying out the gun, Frisch found that it missed fire and only discharged every third shot.

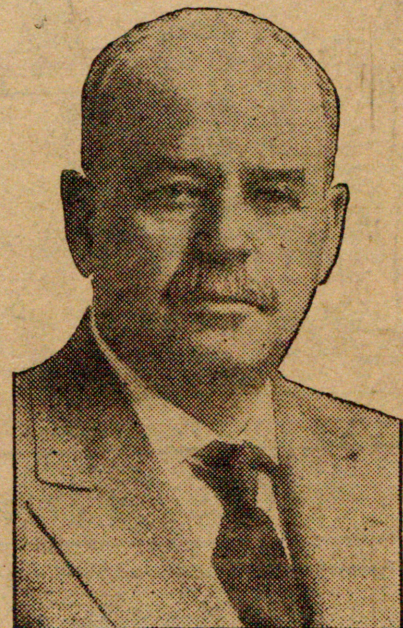

Touzen also swapped a similar weapon with deputy George Aschenbrenner for his gun, Fisher testified. According to Fisher, Touzen has been living with a woman and child in Chicago, supposedly his wife.

Deputy Fisher further stated that in his opinion, Officer Frisch meant well, but was simply tricked by Touzen and James. After going over other complaints that had been filed against Frisch, the board reprimanded him, but retained him as village marshal.

Deputy Fisher stated that James had made the threat at the county jail that as soon as he was released he would come to Mokena and get even with Fisher and the bank officials. Deputy Fisher demanded to know what action the board members were going to take on this and they advised him to place James under arrest if he comes to town for making threats.

The board decided that hereafter when strangers hang about town in a suspicious manner, they should be asked to explain their business and

STRIKES MATCH TO LOOK IN AUTO GAS TANK EXPLOSION

Walter Jorgenson, ex-police chief of Tinley Park, had the surprise of his life the other evening when he attempted to find out how much gasoline he had in his auto by striking a match and holding it up to the tank cover opening. There was an explosion and the tank was torn from the car and the top set on fire. Luckily, Mr. Jorgenson escaped injury.

if they cannot give a satisfactory answer, they should be ordered out of town.

Deputy Fisher stated that a Mokena girl was keeping company with James and that quite a number of pictures of Mokena girls were found in the suitcases of Touzen and James.

Deputy Fisher said that the government officials were holding Touzen's Willys-Knight car because certain things were said to have been missed from the brewery while he was in charge as custodian.

Mokena Farms Sold to Chicago Realty Company

The former Mokena farms owned by Wm. H. Colvin of Chicago were sold last week Wednesday to the Arthur F. McIntosh Realty Co., of Chicago. The property consists of 365 acres and the consideration was $62,000. It is understood that the realtors plan to lay this land out in lots and open a new subdivision.

PARK M. E. CHURCH SUNDAY SPECIAL SERVICE AT TINLEY

The "Gospel Gleaners," a group of ten christian workers, will be in Tinley Park on Sunday evening to conduct a special gospel service at the M. E. Church. Brother Orok from the South will be the speaker. He has had much experience in religious work and especially in the constructive work of the Church.

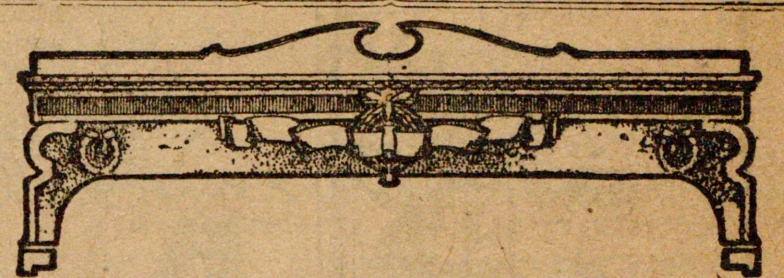

There will be special music throughout the program by able musicians. This will be a real treat for the vicinity. An "Open Air" service will be held shortly before the regular service near the railroad station. Rev. Flynn is in charge of this group as leader and urges all to come and enjoy a real spiritual treat. Invite and bring your friends.

Motorists Adopt a Saint

French motorists have adopted St. Christopher le Joleit as their patron saint. According to legend, St. Christopher, who was of giant stature, crossed the River Jordan one dark night, carrying the Divine Infant, at a place where the river waters ran strongly. Motorists now use a road near the spot and more than 100,000 motorists, cyclists and airmen are said to have formed themselves into a brotherhood of sportsmen whose spiritual home will be the little church in Normandy where a reliquary may be found containing the bones of the saint.

WHAT IS BOTULISM?

THE newspapers report another case of botulism in which a number of people were poisoned, several fatally. The cause in this case was a jar of ripe olives.

On account of the strange name which has been given to this kind of poisoning, many people regard it as something new. This is by no means the case. For centuries past, the peasants in some parts of Germany suffered from what is called "sausage poisoning." Sausages made of the blood, liver and brain of animals, mixed with beans, peas, and seasoning were stuffed into pieces of the intestines of the animals and then smoked so as to preserve them during the winter. Often when the sausages were eaten severe poisoning followed, entirely different from that following the eating of ordinary "spoiled" food.

In 1895, a Belgian physician found that this poisoning was caused by the growth of a vegetable germ, which is not found in the human body but which grows on fruits and vegetables. When these vegetables are canned or used in making sausages, these germs grow and produce a poison which is extremely dangerous. This germ, which is called the Bacillus Botulinus or sausage germ, is found almost everywhere.

Unlike most poisons botulism does not affect its victims at once, the effects usually becoming apparent ten, twenty-four, thirty-six or even forty-eight hours after eating the infected food. Neither does the poison always nauseate the victims, allowing them to throw it off. The patient becomes paralyzed, sometimes blind, grows rapidly weaker and generally dies in a few days. The poison is usually fatal. In 130 cases reported, 454 persons were poisoned of whom 307 died. In one case, 17 died out of 19 persons who were poisoned.

In all cases, botulism followed the eating of canned or bottled goods. In some cases the food was home canned, using what is called the cold-pack method.

Naturally, the American Canners' association, the California fruit growers and olive producers were not only deeply interested but greatly disturbed. In the last few years they have spent a great deal of money trying to find out how to prevent botulism.

The United States bureau of chemistry has issued this warning: "Don't buy any canned goods where the ends of the can bulge out, snap back when pressed in or feel loose, where the can leaks or has loose seams. Such cans have 'leaked air' and the contents are dangerous. Don't use any food, either from cans or bottles, which are moldy, cloudy or discolored or which have a bad odor. Don't use any food from cans that are black or corroded inside. If it is spoiled, throw it out where no animal can get it. If in doubt, add half as much boiling water and boil half an hour. Moist heat will kill the germ."

SCARLET FEVER

SCARLET fever is called a "children's disease." This means that if you have it when you are a child and don't die, you'll live to grow up and die of some other disease.

It is one of the so-called "respiratory diseases." It is taken by breathing in or getting into the throat, from soiled hands, handkerchiefs or other means, the discharges from the throat of some one who has it. It gets its name from the scarlet rash which appears about the third day.

Calling scarlet fever a "children's disease" does not mean that it is harmless. Any disease which kills 5,000 children every year, as scarlet fever does, can hardly be considered of no importance.

Scarlet fever is a highly contagious and very dangerous disease.

How do children get it? From other children who have it or have had it; by drinking milk from a dairy where some one who handles the milk has it, or is in contact with others who have it. A milkman who has a child sick with scarlet fever may carry the germs on his hands and so infect the milk. Grown persons may get it, if they have never had it in childhood. Generally a person who has once had it will not get it again. How do you recognize it? A child, previously well, suddenly seems tired, fretful and generally "out of sorts." After a day of restlessness, there is a chill, followed by fever, sometimes by vomiting, or, in a young child, by convulsions. The fever increases, the skin is hot and dry, and the throat is sore. The tongue is coated, red and swollen. After a day or two of illness, little bright red spots appear on the neck, chest and back.

In mild cases, the symptoms may be slight and the rash faint or only on a part of the body. This is misleadingly called "scarlatina," under the mistaken idea that it is another disease or so mild as to be of no importance.

Don't be deceived. Scarlatina is scarlet fever. If your neighbor's children or the children at school have scarlatina, your children can "catch" scarlet fever from them just as readily as from a severe case.

Permanent roads are a good investment — not an expense

Why America Must Have More Paved Highways

Almost every section of the United States is confronted by a traffic problem.

Month by month this problem is becoming more and more serious.

Hundreds of cars pass a given point every hour on many of our state and county roads. Downtown city streets are jammed with traffic.

Think, too, how narrow many of our roads are, and how comparatively few paved highways there are in proportion to the steadily increasing number of cars.

If the motor vehicle is to continue giving the economic service of which it is capable, we must have more concrete highways and widen those near large centers of population.

Every citizen should discuss highway needs of his community with his local authorities.

Your highway officials will do their part if given your support.

Why postpone meeting this pressing need?

An early start means early relief.

IMMANUEL LUTHERAN
CHURCH (MOKENA) NOTES
D. C. Hennig, Pastor

Many parents disregard the religious training of their children, as well as they have themselves. They do not take an step to consider that the souls of their children also will someday have to leave this world and make their journey into the next. They do nothing, or nearly nothing, to equip the souls of their children for this journey. Let it be, 9, 21 we read: "It is appointed unto men once to die, but after this the judgement."

Parents who neglect the religious training of their children are heaping upon themselves a grave responsibility. Christ expressly tells us in Matt. 19, 14 "to suffer the little children to come unto him, and again in Eph. 6, 4, he admonishes all parents to bring up their children "in the nurture and admonition of the Lord."

Because the parents themselves are handicapped with business and household cares and cannot properly attend to this training themselves, and because the training received in a Sunday school is inadequate—thirty or forty minutes in a week are not sufficient—the Lutheran Church of Mokena is conducting a Saturday school for the purpose of inculcating into the child, God's entire plan of salvation. All children in the community are welcome to attend this school. No tuition fee is charged. The pastor of the congregation is in charge of the school.

ANNOUNCEMENTS OF LUTHERAN CHURCH

English services will be conducted next Sunday morning at 10:30 o'clock. The sermon will be based on Joh. 4, 46-54.

The Bible Class and the Sunday school will meet at 3:30.

LOCKPORT GIRL IS OFFICER

OF COLLEGE LANDSCAPE CLUB
Phyllis Lotz, daughter of Harry F. Lotz, 921 Washington street, Lockport, and a junior in the College of Agriculture, University of Illinois, is vice president of the Landscape Gardening Club, one of the main student organizations of the college. Membership of the club is composed chiefly of those who are specializing in landscape gardening work.

Courses offered by the college in landscape gardening form a good background for the club and afford a wide variety of training for students who are interested in work of that kind. Instruction is offered in the history and nature of landscape gardening, landscape design and construction and planting design; garden flowers, bedding plants and floral decoration; classification and care of trees, shrubs and other ornamental plant materials, and in city planning.

Miss Lotz is a member of Beta Phi Alpha sorority of the university.

She graduated from Lockport Township High School.

WORTH

John Little accompanied by Miss Lillian Kauffman while driving on Saturday evening in his Ford coupe he struck a horse on 11th street near Keene Avenue. It was fortunate that the coupe was not overturned. The accident was caused by a road hog who refused to dim his blinding headlights.

Remember to dim your bright headlights for your own as well as for the other fellows safety.

Mrs. Mary Beichley of Chicago is visiting at the home of her sister, Mrs. B. F. Rolfe of Worth this week.

A Halloween social was held at the M. E. church on Friday evening and a good crowd, plenty of eats and an enjoyable time is reported.

A near tragic accident happened Sunday evening when a Reo sedan overturned immediately in front of the post office. Mr. Arthur Frederick was turning around and ran into a rapidly moving sedan owned by J. Burns of 82nd and Ada Street, Chicago. It seemed almost a miracle that no one was seriously hurt. Honors seem to be about even as to who was at fault.

Oliver Stromberg, son of Mrs. E. E. Stromberg and Miss Helen Poleon of Chicago were quietly married Saturday afternoon, Nov. 1st by Rev. Boynton of the Woodlawn Baptist church. Mrs. N. G. Childs, sister of Mr. Stromberg, served a dinner in honor of the bride and groom after the ceremony which was attended only by the immediate members of the family.

Miss Lillian Tessnow entertained Bertha Lange, Lillian Kauffman and Hazel Stromberg at an informal tea Sunday afternoon at her home.

Mr. C. G. Rust is finishing 219 feet of cement walk in front of his place of business on the north side of 11th Street. This walk adds a material beauty to the street and increases the value of the property many per cent more than the cost of the work.

Mr. Perry Bishop who has been visiting with his sister, Mrs. Will Rust of Bloomington, Michigan for the last six months, returned home last week.

Perry says a farm in Michigan is the only place to get a first class appetite.

Invitation is again extended to the people of Worth and vicinity to hand in their items of news to Mr. B. F. Rolfe. We want our column to be as interesting as possible and we would appreciate any news items.

A. J. Crandell is having cement walks placed around his yard and is expecting to finish street walks if weather conditions permit.

Mr. Crandell's home is one of the many beautiful places in town and cement walks will give it a dignity and beauty heretofore unknown.

ILLINOIS LEADS ALL IN ROADS

Under Governor Small State Has Gained Nation-Wide Reputation as "Motorist's Friend."

Backed by the most efficient highway department in the country, Gov. Len Small has "pulled Illinois out of the mud" during the four years he has been in office.

Starting at the beginning of his term four years ago, the state executive has driven relentlessly forward on his road-building program and Illinois today stands supreme as the "motorist's friend."

By January 1, 1925, 4,608 miles of concrete pavement will have been built. If the voters approve the $100,000,000 bond issue at the November election, another 6,400 miles will be added to this mileage, making the grand total approximately 11,000 miles. A system of this magnitude will place a hard road within easy reach of 95 per cent of Illinois citizens. And it can and will be done, if Governor Small is re-elected, without a dime in direct taxation.

Very recently the division of highways announced that road contractors in Illinois have laid over 1,000 miles of concrete pavement this year. Slightly more than 1,000 miles were laid last year, but with good weather, division engineers believe, over 1,100 miles will be laid before the end of the construction season.

The Illinois concrete pavements are the most durable in the country and the "Illinois type" now is being laid in many states of the Union. The standard design, now being used in this state, was adopted following most rigid tests on the Bates road near Springfield. On this stretch every conceivable type of road was laid by the division of highways. After the sections were completed, huge motor trucks, carrying loads of different weights, traveled over the road day and night while engineers of the division watched the effect on the pavement.

From these tests the engineers were able to state definitely what type of road was best fitted to withstand the onslaughts of thousands of trucks and pleasure vehicles. It is this type of road that now is being laid exclusively in Illinois.

This type of construction has saved the state millions of dollars since its adoption, and other states were quick to realize this fact. Scarcely a day passes without seeing some engineer of another state or nation waiting upon the Illinois division for highway information on this type of road.

Persons not actually in contact with the work of the division have little, if any, idea of the immense amount of materials necessary in the construction of 4,608 miles of pavement.

By the end of this year over 60,000,000 bags of cement, 10,000,000 cubic yards of sand, stone and gravel, and 141,000,000 pounds of steel will have been used on our state highways. If all motor cars constructed to date could be equipped with truck bodies, they could not carry this load on one trip.

To build one mile of road requires approximately a mile of cars loaded with materials. The materials used in 1923 on Illinois roads would require a solid train of freight cars from Chicago to Denver.

The cement used to date would require five years total output of 24 hours per day of the largest mill furnishing cement in Illinois.

After roads are constructed they are taken over by the bureau of maintenance, which has charge of all repairs, upkeep, patrol, etc., of the hard road system. It is part of the work of this bureau to mark all roads. As evidence of how well this work has been done motorists, returning from cross-country trips, report Illinois as the best marked road system in the country.

The road-building program in Illinois undoubtedly is the most comprehensive in the country, if not the world. Governor Small has permitted nothing to stand in the way of the rapid advancement of this program and all Illinois now can be justly proud of the achievement, which, in the final analysis, is but the beginning of a bigger job—construction of the $100,000,000 system. The fact that Governor Small has built up the state's road-building organization, and has built the roads, is the public's guarantee that the program will be continued if he is re-elected. Who knows what another governor might do?

INSURANCE POLICIES PROTECTED BY SMALL

Par value deposits of $33,048,508.02 of insurance companies are in the hands of the Illinois division of insurance to protect the policy holders of this state. It is disclosed by a report just submitted to Governor Len Small, the Republican candidate for re-election.

The report shows the division produced $11,037,844.88 in revenue from July 1, 1921 to July 1, 1924 as compared with $5,087,058.07, from July 1, 1917 to July 1, 1920.

There are 1,163 insurance companies and associations under the supervision of the division, its report shows.

The Power of the Spoken Word

"WORD of Mouth" is always more effective than the written message.

THE demand for additional telephones continues unabated. This means that we must keep adding to our plant at present day costs, which are greatly in excess of those of ten years ago, thus constantly increasing our average investment per telephone. Unless the revenues derived from our business keep pace with this condition, we cannot hope to meet the demands for expansion and maintain the quality of our service to the public.

TINLEY PARK

Either Patsy Koehler was so excited about the election that he had a hard time to control his Ford or else "Lizzie" had the jumps for according to his friends the car first collided with a touring car bearing a California license and then then tried to climb a truck. All this happened in front of the J. C. Funk store.

The voters of Tinley Park took an exceptional interest in the election last Tuesday. Over 536 legal voters were registered and over 400 votes were polled.

Halloween passed off rather very quiet in comparison to other years. Windows were soaped and a few other harmless pranks were carried out.

Henry Vogt, Sr., has returned from Cummings, Michigan where he has been taking treatments for rheumatism. He is much improved. The Scheer building has been treated to a coat of paint.

The bazaar and chicken supper held at the Saenger hall on Wednesday afternoon and evening was a big success in every way. The affair was given under the auspices of the Ladies Aid Society of the German M. E. church.

August Habenicht who recently sold out his garage business is now going to devote all his time to the manufacturing of an air pressure water pump on which he holds a patent. The past week he has had ground broken for the new factory building he is going to erect on his property.

Chas. P. Hollstein and family moved to Orland the past week.

Mrs. Clemens was hostess to a company of friends at a party at her home Tuesday afternoon.

George Lorenz has had a new cement walk laid around the Linden Garden property. Next spring he plans to have an iron fence built all around the place and to make other noteworthy improvements.

Joe Fulton of Blue Island called on old Tinley Park friends Tuesday.

Henry Klepper is ill with the mumps. The mumps epidemic is much improved.

The Tinley Park flagmen of the Rock Island are keeping a daily record of the number of vehicles and pedestrians cross the crossing during the day. The heaviest traffic is on Sunday according to the records. Patsy Koehler has gone on a big hunting trip to Chillicothe. As Patsy is some sportsman there will no doubt be a big slaughter among the ducks.

Work on the new Zion Lutheran parsonage is progressing rapidly. Work on the new school also is showing marked progress.

Mr. Wm. Schilling who is a student at the Concordia College at Milwaukee, Wis., spent several days at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Adam Schilling. He returned to Milwaukee Sunday evening.

A number of birthday parties were held lately. Saturday evening Mr. Wm. Witt was surprised by his neighbors and friends. On Sunday evening Mrs. Emil Schmitt entertained about 40 guests and on Monday evening a number of friends called on Mr. Walter Magner and reminded him of his birthday. All friends present report good eats and an enjoyable time.

BACHELOR GROVE LUTH. CHURCH NOTES

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Rauch, the popular Texas oil man of Blue Island, had their baby christened on Sunday afternoon. The name given is Lucille.

Regular services will be held at the Bachelor's Grove Luth. church next Sunday.

On Thursday, Nov. 22 the Ladies Aid Society of this church are going to hold their annual supper and bazaar at the Saenger hall in Tinley Park. Everybody welcome.

First Steam Transatlantic Trip.
The American vessel Savannah crossed the Atlantic from Savannah, Ga., to Liverpool in 29 days 11 hours. The trip was made partly under steam but mainly by sail. In 1833 the Royal William, of 830 tons, built in Canada, made the first transatlantic voyage entirely under steam.

BEFORE TWINS WERE BORN

Was Very Miserable. Felt Lots Better After Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Wycocena, Wisconsin.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before my twins were born because my sister recommended it to me. I was so I could scarcely go about my daily work I was in such misery. But after I began taking the second bottle I was feeling lots better. I took three bottles and a half before I was confined and finished the bottle while I was in bed. I got up feeling fine and have taken care of the twins alone ever since. I recommend the Vegetable Compound highly and will sing its praises in the future."

—Mrs. Ida Gerbertz, Wycocena, Wis.

It is remarkable how many cases have been reported similar to this one. Many mothers are left in a weakened and run-down condition after child-birth, and for such mothers the care of the baby is well-nigh impossible. Not only is it hard for the mother, but the child itself will indirectly suffer.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is an excellent tonic for the mother both before and after child-birth. It is prepared from medicinal roots and herbs, and does not contain any harmful drugs. It can be taken in safety by nursing mothers.

Treasure in Rubbish

While cleaning accumulated rubbish from the home of Catherine Rosenberger, an aged woman living at York, Pa., workmen found $1,161 and some small change which the occupant of the house did not know she had. The money was found in stewpots and other containers mixed up with the rubbish. It has been deposited in a bank to the woman's name.

WOMEN NEED SWAMP-ROOT

Thousands of women have kidney and bladder trouble and never suspect it.

Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease.

If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition they may cause the other organs to become diseased.

Pain in the back, headache, loss of ambition, nervousness are oftentimes symptoms of kidney trouble.

Don't delay starting treatment. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a physician's prescription, obtained at any drug store, may be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions.

Get a medium or large size bottle immediately from any drug store.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation, send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing, be sure and mention this paper.—Advertisement.

"Money" Not Universal

Money is such a usual article that one would be surprised to find a people without it, and a people who did not understand the use of it. Yet there are hundreds of races who have never used it, and others who have very different ideas of the use of money from our own.

A man may be honest because there is money in it, or he may be otherwise for the same reason.

SYNOPSIS.—Thrown from his auto in a New York village, a man is carried unconscious into the home of a Miss Edith Grant. A doctor discovers he has been shot, fatally. Consciousness returning, he babbles of "millions." He begs that Henry Archman, millionaire resident of the vicinity, be sent for, declaring he has important papers for him. Archman cannot be reached by phone, but word is sent that his secretary is on the way. A man announcing himself as Archman's secretary, Akin, arrives, talks with Morbach, and leaves with a package he gives him. Morbach dies. Archman's arrival, with his secretary, reveals that the man posing as Akin is an impostor. Archman denounces Edith Grant as a girl endeavoring to snare his son Harry. Archman, it appears, his millions made in Chicago, has yielded to the importunities of his family—his wife, daughters Nellie and Bessie (seventeen years old), and son Harry—moved to New York in an endeavor to gain recognition by the Four Hundred. They have not succeeded. Mrs. Archman is bitter over her failure, particularly mourning the fact that she has not been "taken up" by a Mrs. Van Kull. Archman orders Nellie to get ready for a long journey with him. He refuses to reveal their destination to his wife, declaring it is "not his secret." Nellie tells Bess she is in love with James Carr, a youth working on Archman's ship, El Rio. She gives Bess a message for him. Archman and Nellie depart. Harry tells Bess of his determination to marry Edith Grant. Mrs. Archman receives a map, with the explanation that it was among Morbach's papers, and suggesting she forward it to Mr. Archman. Lord George Caruthers, traveling Englishman, arrives at the Archman home, by invitation. He makes a good impression. Bess meets Carr and tells him her sister's message. She learns from him that "Edith Grant" is his sister. He says he loves Nellie. Mrs. Archman takes Bess and Harry and Caruthers on the El Rio to meet her husband. A Miss Denslow, engaged as governess for Bess, and Akin, sail with the party. Captain Bunker has sealed orders. Miss Denslow and Caruthers, it appears, have met before. They decide to keep it a secret. Bess finds a note urging her to warn Captain Bunker to guard his instructions. She thinks it a joke, but playfully warns the captain she will see them before he does.

Bess glanced up at the bridge where Captain Bunker's form was outlined against the sunset. Then she turned back to Lord George, as if to speak.

But the Englishman anticipated her. "That really was a bottle now!" he cried. "It was, 'pon my word. Did you see it?"

"Yes; I saw it." Bess spoke shortly. Her vague suspicions suddenly flattened.

"Jolly good shot. What?"

"Yes; it was a good shot. Where do you suppose those bottles came from?"

"Where? Oh, I fancy somebody tossed them overboard up forward somewhere. Er—Captain Bunker must have opened his instructions. What?"

Bess started. Undoubtedly that was the explanation of the change, of course. "I'll go see!" she cried, and raced forward.

Captain Bunker was on the bridge. If he saw Bess ascending the ladder to his perch, he showed no signs of his perception. His broad back and indeed his whole attitude was repellent. Almost Bess hesitated.

Almost, but not quite. Curiosity drove her on. "Captain!" she said timidly.

Captain Bunker turned. His face was forbidding. "Miss Archman," he said coldly, "can I do anything for you?" Suppressed anger thrilled in his tones.

Bess faltered. "No—nothing," she stammered. "I only wanted to ask—ask whether you had opened the instructions yet?" She tried to make her tones light, but failed lamentably. What could be the matter? She wondered.

"Yes; I have opened them." Captain Bunker's face grew grimmer. Abruptly he turned upon the girl. "Miss Archman," he said, "when you threatened to see those instructions before I did, I thought you were joking. I did not dream that you would attempt to carry out so dishonorable a threat, or that you could succeed even if you did attempt it."

"Why! I—I—I—Good gracious! I was joking, of course." Bess' face lengthened with dismay. "How dare you speak this way to me?" she burst out.

"I fancy you know why." Bitterness rang in Captain Bunker's tones. "I do not know how you got into my safe, Miss Archman," he said. "True, it was old-fashioned. But I compliment you on your extraordinary skill in opening it. But I cannot compliment you on your respect for your father's wishes or on your carefulness in hiding your tracks." The captain plunged his hand into his pocket and drew out a bit of cambric. "Permit me to return your handkerchief, Miss Archman," he said. "You left it in the broken drawer in the safe."

Bess took the handkerchief. Her lips had grown quite white. Silently, she scanned it, identifying it by the mark in the corner. Then she lifted her eyes to Captain Bunker. "This is my handkerchief, Captain Bunker," she said. She was very young and her heart was beating furiously, but she spoke with dignity. "It is mine," she repeated, "but I have no idea how it got into your safe. Certainly I did not leave it there. I did not open your safe. I didn't even see your safe. I never dreamed of violating my father's wishes. I had reason to believe that some one else might try to get at those instructions and I tried to warn you. I seem to have failed."

"Good heavens!" Captain Bunker stared. "But—but—the handkerchief!" he protested.

"Whoever broke in evidently left it there accidentally or in order to make you suspect me. Plainly, he succeeded."

Captain Bunker ignored the innuendo. "But," he protested again, "you suspected that—What do you mean? Whom did you suspect?"

"I don't know."

"You don't know whom you suspected?"

"No; I don't. Some one—I don't know who—left a note in my stateroom asking me to warn you to be careful, that an attempt might be made to get at the papers. I thought it was a hoax, but I warned you nevertheless. But my warning failed."

"But who wrote the note?"

"I don't know. I found it on the dresser in my stateroom."

"But who left it there? You must have some suspicion."

Bess shook her head. "I haven't an idea," she said. "At first I thought it might be Harry trying to play a joke on me. Now I don't know what to think."

"But you must think! Listen to me. I opened the safe this afternoon. I unlocked the inner drawer and looked at the packet. It was secure, just as it was when I put it there three days ago. I locked it up again. I locked the safe. I will swear to it. Half an hour ago I opened it again. The lock of the inner drawer was broken. The packet had been opened and sealed up again neatly. Your handkerchief lay beneath it. If it had not been for the broken lock, I might not have noticed that the safe had been entered and might not have thought anything of your handkerchief being there. But the lock spoke for itself. I opened the envelope and read the instructions. They were explicit. They ordered me le looks rather above a steward's place. But—"

"I guess he's the thief. I'll attend to him, all right." Captain Bunker's laws set themselves grimly. "But I'm afraid it's too late to stop him from sending word to his employers!"

"His employers?"

"Yes. Of course, he's not working for himself. He's working for the people who murdered that man Morbach and who stole the map. When they found that it didn't tell where the island was, they sent it to your mother and then managed to follow her. There isn't a doubt of it. And—and—"

Captain Bunker turned on his heel and pointed toward the northern horizon, now dark with the shadows of coming night. "Look," he said. "Probably you can't see it, but that smoke yonder comes from a boat that has been hanging on my heels ever since we left New York. It is swift, amazingly swift, and silent, amazingly silent. It comes without lights. But once in so often a flash of sparks from its funnel betrays its presence. It's following us, trying to find out where we are going. And some scoundrelly spy on board of us is helping it. And—and—" Captain Bunker choked—"no doubt he's sent the information long ago."

Bess' face wrinkled with perplexity. "But how could he send it?" she questioned.

"Probably in a bottle with a flag and with its cork rubbed with phosphorus. If he tossed enough of them overboard his masters would find one."

Bess' face cleared. "Don't worry about bottles, captain," she said consolingly. "Lord George has been sitting at the stern all afternoon, breaking them with rifle bullets."

CHAPTER IX

From the Taffrail.

Dark fore and aft except for the tiny sheltered light that illumined the compass, the El Rio steamed along southward. Captain Bunker was violating the most stringent rules of the sea, and was running no slight risk in his efforts to throw his pursuer off the track.

Until the swift-paced tropic night descended, he had continued his westward course, knowing full well that his change of direction must have been betrayed by the vessel's smoke. Then, when darkness had screened his movements, he put out his lights and sped eight or ten miles southward; then turned and ran eastward for twenty miles or more; then veered to the southeast and ran on through the night.

Whether he had thrown his pursuer off the track, he did not know. Once or twice he stopped his engines and listened, silently and intently, without hearing any measured peller beat behind him. This, of course, was not conclusive, but it was encouraging.

About midnight he stopped again—this time for longer than before. Orders for silence fore and aft were passed quietly through the ship, and the low hum from fo'castle and from poop died away. For a time the hissing of the water along the sides continued, then it ended as the El Rio lost way. For perhaps five minutes the ship lay quiescent; then, abruptly, the screw began to revolve. The El Rio was off once more.

Captain Bunker had been occupied not only by his efforts to throw the supposed pursuer off the track, but also by an attempt to discover the spy who had robbed the safe. This proved to be extremely difficult. Every one on board who might reasonably have been suspected of committing the robbery seemed to be above suspicion, and were able to prove a perfect alibi, into the bargain.

Very speedily the captain demonstrated to his own dissatisfaction that the steward, James Price, whom he had first suspected, had been forward with the men during the entire time available for the robbery.

Evidently there is a spy on board. Who is it? And what ship is following the El Rio?

First Divorce Court

The first divorce court in England was instituted in 1858. The court consisted of three judges. At the first sitting five marriages were dissolved, and in the first year of the court's operation 38 divorces were granted out of 288 petitions. From the time of the Reformation up to 1858 there had been but 317 divorces in England, granted by acts of parliament. Until the passing of the divorce act in 1858 the theory in English law regarding divorce was the same as that of the Roman Catholic church, although in practice this rule was not strictly adhered to, and wealthy and influential persons, through parliament, secured freedom from galling ties. The divorce act provided that the wronged husband could be released from his obligation to an unfaithful wife, but gave no such recourse to an injured wife, unless the husband's offense in this direction was aggravated by other offenses.

Lost Records Found

The last records of an explorer lost in the desert in Africa 45 years ago have just been discovered. In 1870, Friedrich Rolfe undertook to cross the Libyan desert, one of the most barren and pitiless wastes in the world. He never was heard of again. This year an expedition sent out by Prince Kemal ed Din found a cairn of stones, and when they took it apart, discovered within it a sealed bottle containing a manuscript. The latter proved to be the records of the lost explorer. These were forwarded to Germany, and were found to contain scientific data of considerable interest and value.

The Episcopal parsonage is to be wired for electric lights.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Deadmore attended the funeral of the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Whitty at Lemont Friday morning.

Above is a unique topographical map, showing the 900 miles of high tension transmission lines, the 18 electric power generating stations and 27 substations of the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois, one of the interesting features of the Illinois Products Exposition, held during last week at the American Exposition Palace, 666 Lake Shore Drive, Chicago.

Complete in every detail as to the geography of the territory around Chicago and embodying, in a graphic way, the Company's immense facilities for the production and distribution of electricity for light and power in the homes and industries in this section, this map has attracted large crowds at the exhibit. The display of the huge map, representing a territory of 6,000 square miles was enhanced by a novel lighting arrangement installed by the Public Service Company lighting engineers.

A battery of colored flood lights immediately above the front of the booth was arranged in such a way as to play on the map at half-minute intervals producing the effects of daylight, dusk and darkness over the territory.

As the blue lights, denoting dusk, were thrown on, each of the model power houses and sub stations was brilliantly illuminated by tiny electric bulbs on the inside. These lights shone brightly on through each "night" period, symbolizing the activity in the stations during the hours when Public Service Company customers are most dependent on electricity in their homes.

TINLEY PARK

The American Red Cross Roll Call in Tinley Park will begin Nov. 11, Armistice Day, and will last until Thanksgiving, Nov. 27. The money raised through memberships goes to support the work being done by the Chicago chapter of which Tinley Park is a part. One of the outstanding phases of the Chicago Chapter work is that of aiding ex-service men, securing their compensation, hospitalization and vocational training when they are unable to do this themselves.

During the last year the Chicago Chapter aided 10,114 ex-service men. Of this number 7,332 had dependent families requiring assistance. In relief of these men and their families, more than $100,000 was spent. Chicago Chapter is but one of the many Red Cross Chapters in the United States that is doing this work.

Nationally, since the Armistice the American Red Cross has spent approximately $50,000,000 for service to the veterans of the World War. Last month 100,000 men were served. Every chapter is prepared to give service, relief and information to the ex-soldier. The practical and economical method of aiding the disabled veteran in your community is to enroll with the Red Cross. Mrs. W. H. Whyman is in charge of the enrollment in Tinley Park and will be glad to take care of your membership for you.

Little Eleanor Vernon Hall of Mokena, is now a member of the WLS Lullaby Listeners Club and wears the badge of the order. The meetings of this novel organization are held every evening at 7 o'clock over the radio from the Sears-Robuck Station in Chicago, with little Glenn Rowell and "Big" Ford Rush in charge of the ceremonies.

"Smoky," the duck, and "Static" the parrot, initiate the members and the Woodshed Theater has been engaged for the entertainment of the members.

Other little folks here belonging are: Almira Koeller.

In order to increase the revenue of the village from special licenses, the Mokena council is seriously considering passing an ordinance establishing a special tax of $5.00 per year on every auto and truck within the limits of the village. If the proposition is enacted, the new tax will be in force from the first of next year on.

The election is over. The results show that the sportsmen need have no fear that their program of conservation will be neglected. Governor Small has pledged himself to do all in his power to aid the organized sportsmen in their laudable efforts to increase our supply of game, fish and all wild life.

But we must not stop here. Even as we tramp the fields enjoying our sport we should be thinking of the future. Learn where the birds stay, leave enough for seed, and arrange with the farmer to put out feed for them this winter when the snow is deep and natural food is scarce.

No doubt the next General Assembly will make appropriations for the purchase of as many refuges as the receipts from hunting licenses will permit. Look over your hunting grounds for a suitable location for one of these preserves. Protection from hawks, owls and predatory animals, and a plentiful supply of food and water, are the essentials for a satisfactory game refuge. When you have found such a spot of not less than twenty or fifty acres write to the Secretary of the Federated Sportsmen who will communicate with the proper authorities.

FRANKFORT

While August Bauman, Otto Herschbach and Mr. Tuttle, the latter being the architect of the new Frankfort school were motoring to Springfield last Thursday, they met with a serious accident at Gardner when they ran into a ditch. The road at this point is being repaired but there is no detour or warning sign of any kind at this place. The road ended abruptly and as it was dark the ditch was not seen in time to stop the car. Mr. Bauman fared the worse being cut and bruised, the others escaped injury. The car was badly damaged.
